

A Heart-Centered Guide to Sharing the Film with Your Community

We created this simple guide to help you feel empowered and supported as you bring Rescued Hearts to your community. Whether you're hosting an intimate gathering or a large theater screening, we are here to support you each step of the way:

STEP 1: Pick Your Space & Date

The gathering space is where it all begins. Choose a setting that feels welcoming and comfortable - a local independent theater, a community art space, a public library, or even a cozy living room. High-quality sound and clear video make all the difference in the film's impact, so confirm the venue's setup beforehand.

STEP 2: Secure Your License via Kinema

All community screenings require a screening license to obtain official rights to share the film. Our screening partner, Kinema, makes this incredibly easy. Simply select which version of the film you'd like to share (Full 2-hour or just the First Hour), select your date, select the estimated audience size, secure your license, and you're all set!

STEP 3: Spread the Word & Offer Tickets

We'll send you a comprehensive Promotional Toolkit with verbiage and graphics to make it easy to get the word out. While these resources will help you promote your screening, we've found that personal invitations often go the furthest. Send direct, heartfelt text messages to friends and people in your local community.

TIPS FOR TICKETING: To help offset your licensing fee, we encourage you to set up your own ticketing through SimpleTix, Zeffy (for nonprofits), or Humanitix. You can also consider securing sponsors to help cover event costs support your fundraising goals.

STEP 4: Press Play & Hold the Container

You will be able to download the film offline 72 hours prior to your event. You'll want to test everything the day before so you can troubleshoot if needed. On the day of your screening, arrive early to run a quick soundcheck. When guests arrive, make any organizational announcements before the movie begins. This keeps the space after the film sacred, quiet, and spacious for emotional integration and gentle conversation using our Discussion Guide.

Remember: You do not need to host a flawless, high-production event. Rescued Hearts is all about PRESENCE. The film is its own healing transmission - simply holding space in a comfortable room is more than enough.
